

Is your child's behavior a barrier to community activities?

Is your child interested in a sport or activity but challenging behavior stands in the way? Would you like to take your child to the mall, a restaurant, playground, or museum but you need a hand?

The Summit Center can help!

Our STAR Recreation program will give you the skills you need to support your child (ages 5-18) in community activities. The program provides up to ten sessions of 1:1 training/support (up to two hours per session) helping children with disabilities and their families become more engaged in their community.

Our trained staff will help you learn how to:

- Better use praise to motivate your child
- Manage challenging behavior in the community
- Build acceptance in the community

Your child will learn the skills necessary for success in community-based activities – whether it's ice skating or walking through the mall; learning how to swim or visiting a museum. If you need help figuring out activities your child might enjoy, we can help with that, too!

Children must be OPWDD eligible.
